PRIZE ON IRIS TO MISS BEAL

SPECIAL AWARD IS MADE AT THE FLOWER SHOW.

NIGHT CROWD LARGE

Much Interest Is Shown in This Year's Exhibit and D. A. R. Is Well Pleased.

Miss Alice L. Beal of Maryville was announced late yesterday as the winner of the Wilfley prize for the best display of iris at the annual flower show sponsored by the Maryville chapter of the D. A. R. and held in the armory building yesterday afternoon and evening. The prize is a root from one of G. L. Wilfley's prize peonies, the Duchess de Nemours, which will be delivered at the proper time for putting it in the ground. The peony is white with a greenish luster.

Another large crowd viewed the display last night. One of the spots of interest in the building was a miniature rock garden, which had been arranged by a St. Joseph flower firm. There was a tiny mountain with shrubs all along its sides, and two little lakes at the bottom.

On the same table with the rock garden was a pan of water lilies. This firm also had a beautiful display of iris on another table in the room.

In the rush to determine the prize-winner yesterday, a mistake was made on the score sheet in announcing the winner of Class 52, Hybrid Tea Roses. Mrs. Ferdinand Townsend of Maryville won both first and second prizes in this class with a pure yellow rose.

Much Interest Shown.

Much interest was shown in the display this year, and the entry list shows a surprising number of men with displays. There were entries from Burlington Junction and Hopkins.

The late Mrs. R. H. Duncan had always been one of the community's most ardent flower growers, and before her death she had potted a number of plants to be sold at the sale in connection with the show yesterday. These were among the flowers sold.

The St. Joseph judges and other out-of-town visitors at the display were taken on a short tour yesterday and were shown some of the attractive flower gardens here. All of the judges except Mrs. John Shireman returned to St. Joseph yesterday. Mrs. Shireman, who is a cousin of Mrs. Joseph Jackson and Mrs. J. A. Ford, will spend the week-end here.

Probably the flower which caused more comment than any of the others in the display was a Moccasin Flower, entered in Class 31 by Mrs. Theodore Robinson. The flower is a member of the orchid family although not the kind popularly known as the orchid. It was said that the flower is the state flower of Minnesota and that it grows wild in that state.

Mrs. Vada Halley of Maryville has an excellent flower garden and has always been a contributor to the annual

Few Fires in May, Fewer Police Cases

Fire Chief Reports Three, Police Chief Only One.—Council Adjourns Until Tonight.

A scarcity both of fires and police cases during May was reported to the city council at its meeting last night by Fire Chief Claud Stults and Police Judge Joseph H. Sayler.

The fire department was called out only three times during the month and Judge Sayler heard only one case in police court. It was for drunkenness and the fine assessed was $10.

The payroll for the fire department was $48.50 for fires on May 2 at the N. G. Ellis home, 127 South Fillmore street; May 4 at the Snappy Service Inn, 318 North Buchanan street; and May 30 at the home of Mrs. Angie Briggs, 123 South Market street.

A scarcity of both fires and police

The city council attended only to routine matters and adjourned until tonight. A permit was allowed for the Maryville Electric Light and Power company to erect an electric sign in front of the Masonic Temple, 14 feet 9 inches in length and 4 feet wide.

The Mayor's report of the city's finances showed that last night there was $77,943.61 in the city treasury, out of which the May bills are to be paid. The amount in the different funds were: Water department, $43,656.73; street fund, $5,119.71; library, $2,318.46; general fund, $18,668.92; first water bond, $2,186.18; street workers' guarantee fund, $351; street lighting, $3,255.34; and second water bond, $2,387.17.

The report of Miss Grace Langan, librarian, showed that 1,776 books and magazines were loaned last month, of which 634 were juvenile books, 1,051 books of the general character and 91 magazines, an average of sixty-eight a day. Thirty-six readers' cards were issued. 1,065 used the reading rooms and collections totaled $22.97.

Mysterious Promise to Children's Church

"Something Special" for Those Who Attend Four Out of Six Sundays.

"Something special" is promised to children who attend the Children's church of the First Methodist church for the next four Sundays, or who have attended, at that time, four of the last six Sundays. The officials of the Children's church were very mysterious about what the "something special" was to be.

The children will sing tomorrow at the opening of the regular church and then will retire to their own quarters for services which include a story and Bible dramatization.

4 BOYS TAKE FAIR EXAMS

FROM RURAL SCHOOLS

Union, Mount Vernon, Bell Grove and Elm Grove Represented at Quiz Today.

Four boys of the Maryville vicinity today took the competitive state fair school examination, conducted at the State Teachers College by Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent of schools.

The one making the highest average in the examination will represent this county at the state fair school at Sedalia in August, where his expenses will be paid. To be eligible to compete in the examination the boys had to be a member of some 4-H club or be regularly enrolled in school. The boys who took the examinations were:

Norman E. Jones, age 14, Union school, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Jones.

James McGinness, age 14, Mount Vernon school, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McGinness.

Chester Kime, age 13, Bell Grove school, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Kime.

Forrest Conrad, age 13, Elm Grove school, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Conrad.

Mr. Somerville said that the papers would be graded this week-end and the winner announced in an issue of the Democrat-Forum and Tribune early next week.

Instructor Later to Attend Harvard.—Summer Faculty Member to Occupy Home.

Bert Cooper, of the education department of the State Teachers College, will leave tomorrow morning for Lincoln, Neb., where he will conduct a two weeks' short course in the education department of the University of Nebraska. It will be an intensive course in vitalized agriculture. In former years he has taught in Nebraska schools and has been very popular.

Mr. Cooper, after the course is over, will return to Maryville for one day before leaving with Mrs. Cooper for Boston, where he will finish work on his Master's degree at Harvard. Mr. Cooper is specializing in field of vocational guidance and test measurements.

Miss Elizabeth Briggs, who will take Miss Minnie B. James' place in the commerce department of the State Teachers College during the absence of Miss James this summer, and Miss Gertrude Fulcher, who will be a student of the College, will occupy the Cooper home during the summer months.

Trains Change Time on Villisca Branch

New Schedules Effective Monday for Trains No. 56 and No. 45.—Will Arrive Earlier.

A change in train time, effective Monday, on the Villisca branch of the Burlington, will affect Clearmont, Burlington Junction, Quitman and Skidmore in this county. The change of schedule is being made on northbound train No. 45 and southbound, No. 56.

The new time means the two trains will arrive at the stations along the route several minutes earlier than on the present schedule. Other trains and the Sunday schedule remain the same.

No. 45, going north, which arrives at Skidmore under the present time at 5:59 p. m., will be due at 5:53 p. m. and will arrive at Quitman at 6:08 instead of 6:13; at Burlington Junction at 6:22, instead of 6:29, and at Clearmont at 6:33 instead of 6:38.

No. 56, southbound, under the old time, is due in Clearmont at 3:25 p. m., but will arrive at 2:52, thirty-three minutes earlier. The train will get in Burlington Junction at 3:03. The old time was 3:38. It will arrive at Quitman at 3:15 instead of 3:50, and is due in Skidmore at 3:28 instead of 4:04.

BETTER COWS SEEN AS NEED

NUMBER LESS IMPORTANT THAN TYPE, CONFERENCE HEARS.

CAN INCREASE PROFIT

Missouri needs better dairy cows. But it does not need an increase in the number of present dairy cows.

These two facts were stressed at the dairy conference held at Columbia this week, called by the Associated Industries of Missouri.

Five Maryville men attended: J. R. Fleetwood, county extension agent; J. F. Hull, James Todd, H. H. Mutz and W. F. Phares.

Upon his return from Columbia, Mr. Fleetwood said that the conference was attended by men in nearly every important walk of life, including dairymen themselves, bankers, newspapermen, manufacturers, railroad representatives, creamery proprietors, business men, college men interested in dairying, and farmers who milk cows. The meeting was held at the College of Agriculture of the University. It was in the form of a conference to attempt to find out what the Associated Industries could do to help develop the dairy industry in Missouri.

Committee to Be Named.

As the result of the conference, a committee is to be appointed having a representative from the Associated Industries, the College of Agriculture, the Missouri Bankers Association, the Missouri Press Association, various farmers' organizations and from any other associations which the representatives felt should be included. The committee is to draw up a definite program of work and some type of more or less permanent organization is to be built up to carry out the program, Mr. Fleetwood said.

Mr. Fleetwood cited some figures presented by A. C. Ragsdale of the College of Agriculture to show that the shipping into the state of cows which do not produce more than the state average cannot increase the dairy business appreciably.

In 1919 the state average milk production for each cow was 3,200 pounds and 137 pounds of fat. In 1927 it was 3,255 pounds of milk and 140 pounds of butter fat. Cow testing association records show that the average for cow testing association cows per cow in 1919 was 5,184 pounds of milk and 230 pounds of butterfat, while for last year the average per cow was 6,787 pounds of milk and 285 pounds of butterfat.

Mr. Ragsdale gave further proof of the benefits to be derived by better cows, stating that the net profit above feed costs in 1919 for the state average was $3.16 and in 1927 it was $7.57. Cow testing association cows made an average per cow of $27.04 profit a head in 1919 and $78.26 in 1927.

Can Raise Average.

By proper feeding, breeding and weeding, such as has been practiced by cow testing association members the average of the state in milk and butterfat can be raised to that of the cow testing association cows, Mr. Ragsdale said at the conference.

These methods would very materially increase the net profit of the dairyman without increasing the number of cows, it was shown. If all the 827,000 cows in the state could be brought to the present standard of production of the cows in cow testing association in the state, it would mean increasing the net profit of the farmers who milk cows by $65,879,410 annually, the dairy conference was told.

D. H. Otis, agriculture director of the American Bankers Association, of Madison, Wis., Mr. Van Norman, president of the American Dry Milk industry, and Mr. Ragsdale, all declared the best means of developing the dairy industry in Missouri can be accomplished by promotion of cow testing associations, bull associations, 4-H dairy clubs, regular testing of herds for tuberculosis and abortion, and last but not least, the promotion of better markets where quality products can be marketed at a premium, Mr. Fleetwood said.

Henry A. Bundschu Into Senate Race

Kansas City Attorney Becomes Fifth Candidate for Republican Nomination.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 2.—Henry A. Bundschu, lawyer of Kansas City, announced that he would file for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate at 4 o'clock here today.

Bundschu is the fifth man to enter the senatorial race. The others are O. J. Page, of Springfield, W. O. Atkeson, of Butler, Roscoe Patterson, of Kansas City, and David M. Proctor, of Kansas City.

M'NABB WILL MAKE HOOVER NOMINATION

San Francisco Attorney Chosen to Make Speech at Republican Convention.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—John McNabb, San Francisco attorney, will make the nominating speech for Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover for the presidential candidacy at the Republican national convention, it was announced today.

James W. Good, chairman of the Hoover campaign committee, made the announcement.

A group of five farm leaders were reported in secret conference after they had talked with Good and other Hoover organizers.

These men are preparing an agricultural plank for submission to the committee on resolutions which will write the party platform, it was said.

AGRICULTURE CHIEFS MEET

CORN BELT LEADERS DRAFT POLITICAL PROGRAM.

TO PLAN FARM MARCH

"Second Caravan of the Covered Wagon" to Protect What First Developed, Says McMullen.

Chicago, June 2.—Fifty farm leaders, representing 14 corn belt states, met in secret session for three hours today discussing the ways and means of procedure for the proposed mass movement of middle western farmers upon the national Republican convention at Kansas City.

At the conclusion of the meeting, M. J. Tobin, of Vinton, Ia., declared "the farmers of the middlewest are going to Kansas City united and determined that they shall get the same rights and protection as other interests in this nation."

Considerable significance was attached to the fact that the meeting was held in the offices of Otis M. Glenn, Republican nominee for U. S. Senator from Illinois, and the man selected to nominate Lowden at the national convention.

Tobin, however, denied that the meeting was held in the interest of any particular candidate.

Subcommittee Named.

"The conference was entirely unprejudiced," Tobin said, "except that farm leaders will demand a man from the middlewest be nominated for the presidency."

"We are agreed upon our plan of procedure, and have appointed a sub-committee to draft a proposal which will be submitted to the convention," he said.

Senator Watson, Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska and George Peek, Moline, Ill., chairman of the committee which directed the organized support of the McNary-Haugen bill for farm organizations while it was before Congress, comprised the committee.

"We desire no such proposal as will alienate any one from the Republican party, but we stand unequivically for farm equality," Tobin declared. "He will be greatly disappointed if some remedial measures are not taken by the convention.

"Prairies Are Aflame."

"Don't say that I am making any threats of a third party, but the western prairies are aflame as never before with political interest."

Claude McKenzie, Minnesota national committeeman, Judge F. J. Graham, North Dakota national committeeman; Col. C. H. March, chairman of the Minnesota convention delegation; Major C. W. Montgomery, chairman of the Willis delegation from Ohio, and state Senator George A. Barr of Illinois were among those attending.

The meeting, specifically, was in charge of chairman of the fourteen state committee, organized recently to protect President Coolidge's second veto

SHEDS LIGHT ON TAMMANY

OLVANY TELLS SENATORS IT IS NOT POLITICAL.

SAYS NOTHING SPENT

Only Expenditure for Smith Has Been for Stamps, Sachem Declares Before Committee.

New York, June 2.—George W. Olvany, Sachem of Tammany Hall, told the Senate campaign investigating committee today that his organization had not spent anything for the presidential candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

"Our society has not received any contributions for any candidate and never does," said Olvany. "The Democratic committee has not made or accepted any contributions. No one has been asked to contribute.

"I have received three letters, one containing a $5 contribution and two containing $1 contributions. I turned it over to the local Smith campaign committee.

Stamps Only Expenditure.

"The only expenditures we have made are for postage stamps, answering letters about Governor Smith's record and the history of the Tammany society."

Before being sworn, Olvany said he would have been here yesterday except that his son had been ill.

"I know of no political organization known as Tammany," Olvany said, "I know of a Tammany society, a patriotic organization, which has its headquarters in a building known as Tammany Hall."

Process servers reported yesterday that Olvany had gone fishing. He heard of the subpoena and returned to testify. Olvany named more than a score of men and women who are district Democratic leaders here. He said they comprised the Democratic county committee here. The committee had no connection with Tammany Hall, he added.

Governor Smith a Member.

"What position do you hold in the patriotic society?" Chairman Steiwer asked.

"I am a sachem."

"What is that—I'm from the West?"

"It's a sort of director."

"How many are there?"

"Thirteen."

Olvany named the thirteen sachems. He said John R. Voorhees was grand sachem. Governor Smith was a member, he said.

"The Tammany society has nothing to do with politics in the city," said Olvany. "It was formed over 100 years ago. It takes the side of the poor against the rich."

"Well, it must be philanthropic," said Steiwer.

"It is," replied Olvany.

"But everyone always associates the name Tammany with politics," said Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky.

"I think that is because the society is in a building called Tammany Hall," Olvany said.

Membership Not Political.

Olvany said members were admitted regardless of their politics.

Barkley asked about rumors that no one could be appointed to a city position here unless he belonged to Tammany.

"That cannot be true," Olvany said, "because many of the appointments here are under civil service."

Barkley also asked if it were true that Tammany let city contracts.

"That is not true, because cantracts are let by competitive bidding," Olvany answered.

Olvany said he had made no contributions to the Smith campaign.

He said Voorhees was 99 years old and was head of the board of elections here.

"And he's on the job every day," Olvany said.

"I am a sachem in the Redmen," said Barkley, "do we have any connection with you?"

"I don't think so," said Olvany, laughing.

Democrats Pay No Rent.

He said he had no knowledge of Smith contributions other than those given to the committee by George Van

Cleveland, O., June 2.—Ohio delegates to the Democratic national convention at Houston, now pledged to former Senator Atlee Pomerene, favorite son presidential candidate, will swing to Gov. Al Smith of New York, according to Joseph Breitenstein, delegate from the 20th Ohio district.

The delegates will cast their ballots for Smith at the first opportunity," Breitenstein said. "If he is placed in nomination first, we will support him immediately."

PEKING FALL IS IMMINENT

NORTHERN LEADER ANNOUNCES HE WILL WITHDRAW.

UNDER MARTIAL LAW

THE CHINESE SITUATION IN BRIEF

By United Press

Surrender of Peking to the Nationalist armies by General Chang Tso Lin seemed imminent today as the victorious southerners pressed eagerly towards the northern capital.

Dispatches to the exchange telegraph in London, however, indicated northern leaders had conferred and decided against evacuating Peking immediately.

Meanwhile, the southerners advanced, although no battles have been reported. General Chang Tsung Chang, northern leader, is said to have ordered a general retreat of his armies from the vicinity of Tientsin.

Wives of northern leaders were said to be rushing back to Manchuria, and railroad trains were reported congested with northerners hastening to the northern stronghold of Chang Tso Lin.

Peking, June 2.—(11:10 p. m.)—Chang Tso-Lin, dictator of northern China, in a statement tonight said that he proposed to withdraw immediately, with all his troops, to Manchuria, and turn over administration of Peking to a temporary government.

Washington, June 2.—Peking's fall to southern Chinese forces, now believed a matter of hours, probably will bring the Nationalist government no closer to recognition by the United States, according to authoriative opinions here today.

Immediate recognition is out of the question, it was said in an official quarter. The Nationalists first must show they can organize a stable central government and keep it functioning for some time, and they also must prove their ability to hold China together. Until that is done, the Nationalists can not expect to be recognized by Washington.

It was said, however, that the United States would follow its own conscience in the matter of recognition and not be influenced by the course Japan or Great Britain may take.

Martial Law Declared.

Shanghai, June 2.—With nationalist occupation imminent, martial law was declared at Peking today and foreign military forces, on the defensive in the legation quarter, were prepared for any emergency.

Martial law was declared at the same moment that there came reports of a decision by Chang Tso-Lin to defend the city, at least for the time being.

A special train was waiting for him at the eastern railway station in Peking, and his departure was expected hourly, when it was reported that he had decided to postpone his flight.

Says Farmers Will Demand Relief Plank

But Nothing So Radical as McNary-Haugen Bill, Big Wheat Grower Predicts.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—"Farmers of the nation will demand of the Republican convention a relief plank but they will not agree upon anything so radical as the McNary-Haugen bill," Thomas D. Campbell, of Hardin, Mont., said here today.

Campbell arrived here to attend the national Republican convention. He is said to be the biggest wheat grower in the world. Each year he cultivates 65,000 acres of Montana soil.

"What the farmers want," he contended, "is to be given the same protection that the government gives to industry. That would be accomplished by a more stringent immigration law and a protective tariff that will work."

NEXT HOP ON MONDAY

OVERHAULING OF MOTOR TO DELAY SOUTHERN CROSS.

WEARY AVIATORS REST

3,144 Miles Over Water to Fiji Islands Will Be Most Perilous Part of Australian Journey.

Honolulu, June 2.—Exhausted by the strain of their long flight from the mainland and the excitement of their reception here, the four airmen of the Southern Cross slept late today in their hotel at Waikiki Beach.

The official calculation of the fliers' time was announced as 58 hours 43 minutes.

Mechanics of the army air force at Wheeler Field were at work on the Southern Cross, preparing it for the next hop on the record-breaking flight to Australia.

It was found necessary to tear down the starboard motor of the plane and give it a complete overhauling. This work forced a delay in plans to take the plane to the Barking Sands flying field, on the island of Kauai, 100 miles distant from Wheeler Field.

Hope to Take Off Monday.

Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, commander of the plane, and his three companions, Charles T. P. Ulm, relief pilot, Lieut. Harry Lyon, navigator, and James W. Warner, radio operator, hope to take off from Barking Sands Monday for Suva, in the Fiji Islands.

This leg of the California-Australia flight will cover a stretch of 3,144 miles of water never before attempted by any aviator. It will represent the most hazardous stage of Kingsford-Smith's venture.

Captain Kingsford-Smith and Lieut. Lyon planned to study charts of the Pacific ocean westward from Honolulu to Suva today.

Many were convinced the attempt would be suicidal and officials of Bishop Museum, who are thoroughly familiar with the South Sea Islands, may try to dissuade him.

Determined to Try.

Captain Kingsford-Smith, however, appeared determined to make the attempt.

The trip to Suva will be 800 miles longer than the non-stop journey which the airmen completed yesterday from Oakland.

Given Great Reception.

Cablegrams of congratulation showered down upon the fliers from all parts of the world today. In Honolulu, where thousands waited anxiously during the tense hours they were fighting treacherous cross-currents over the Pacific, the men were accorded the greatest reception since the trail-blazing flight of Maitland and Hegenberger.

Kingsford-Smith planned to confer with navigators and other persons familiar with the ocean route between Honolulu and Suva, and indicated he might make the flight in two hops instead of one if it seemed advisable.

Lyon said he was willing to navigate the plane anywhere, so long as there were small islands at fairly frequent intervals along the course. The chief danger of the long 3,200 mile jump to Suva was the possibility of running out of fuel.

Can Carry More Gas.

There was a possibility, however, that enough gasoline might be loaded into

New Jersey Election Probe Begins Monday

Washington, June 2.—Senatorial investigation of the late New Jersey election will start here Monday, according to tentative plans announced today by Senator King, Democrat, Utah.

King and Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, comprise a sub-committee to inquire into the New Jersey senatorial election.

Edwin T. Meredith Is in Critical Condition

Des Moines, Ia., June 2.—Edwin T. Meredith, former secretary of agriculture, was in a critical condition at his home here today. Physicians said he was suffering from ear trouble.

Meredith's condition has caused his physicians some concern for months, but it was not until recently that they admitted his illness was serious.

Weather

Partly cloudy tonight, somewhat unsettled Sunday, probably without rain, not much change in temperature.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

A VALUABLE MEETING.

The dairy conference sponsored by the Associated Industries of Missouri and held at Columbia Thursday was a valuable meeting. Being convinced that a further development of dairying in Missouri would greatly add to the prosperity and wealth of the farming sections, a state-wide meeting was called for a general discussion and conference on the subject. It was held at the state agricultural College, where an exhaustive study is being made of all farm production problems, and was attended by representatives of all sorts of interests from all parts of the state. Saline county had twenty-five or thirty men there.

Some very fine and instructive addresses were made by men from Wisconsin and elsewhere who have studied the subject in those states where it has been successful. Following these there was an open forum discussion in which Missourians in various walks of life took part. Much interesting information was developed. A great many progressive and studious farmers were present and took part in the discussions which ended with a resolution to carry on the work and arrange for a further conference of farmers and kindred organizations where a constructive plan of work is expected to be developed.

Among the outstanding facts that came out of the meeting were these: Wisconsin has become the leading and most highly developed dairy state in the union. Those farmers who have undertaken the work in earnest are prosperous, have highly improved farms, furnace heated, electric lighted and modern homes generally. There are very few bank failures there. Wisconsin did not get into dairying because of any particular adaptability over other states or because the people generally wanted to, but because they ran down their farms raising wheat and were no longer able to make a living as they were going. Because of the long winters and exceeding cold it is expensive to care for cows in Wisconsin.

Here are some facts with reference to Missouri: Missouri does not produce enough milk for her own consumption and great amounts are shipped into the state in various ways. One hundred car loads of cheese are shipped from Wisconsin into Kansas City alone each year. One gentleman, who has been in Wisconsin for many years, but is now in Missouri engaged in dairy work, stated that milk can be produced in Missouri 40 per cent cheaper than in Wisconsin. Cows must be kept in comfortable barns and carefully fed in Wisconsin for about eight months in the year, whereas they can run in the open and on pasture in Missouri for at least eight months. It was also brought out that the average production per cow was lower in Missouri than the average for the United States and that it is possible by breeding, careful feeding and proper handling to get as much out of three or four cows as is now gotten out of ten under the present conditions. In fact that is being done by a number of dairymen in Missouri now. This means that milk can be produced at from one-half to one-third of what it is costing the average farmer in Missouri. If four cows will produce what ten are now producing why not get rid of the six extra ones and save their feed or replace them with good producers and get that much more milk for practically the same expense?

To those who are willing to get into the game in earnest and make an effort to succeed as they can, there is a great opportunity offered to the farmers of Missouri in dairying.

Here and There in Northwest Missouri

Rev. Hagee to Nebraska.

The Rev. C. E. Hagee, a former student of the State Teachers College here, who has been in charge of the New Point Christian church, was given a farewell reception last Sunday. He leaves New Point for a pastorate at Verdun, Neb. Both the Christian and Presbyterian congregations of New Point joined in a basket dinner to honor the Reverend Mr. Hagee.

Rosendale Band Ready.

The band concert committee of the Rosendale chamber of commerce has reported that $260 has been raised to sponsor band concerts this summer. The band director was present and announced the band was ready to give its first concert tonight at the community hall.

Albany Rejects Band Levy.

The Albany voters turned thumbs down on the proposed 1½ mill levy for the support of a band there at a municipal election Tuesday. The vote was 367 against and 337 for.

Friends Urge Reeves.

The Stanberry Headlight this week says: "The friends of D. D. Reeves over the district are urging him to make the race for circuit judge of this district. Judge Reeves is one of the best qualified lawyers in the four counties in the district—Gentry, Worth, Nodaway, and Atchison—would make a strong race and, if elected, fill the position with distinction."

Stanberry Boy a Composer.

Charles Sinclair, managing director of the Garden Theater, St. Louis, has signed a contract with Ted Williams, a Washington University student, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Williams of Stanberry, composer of music and lyrics, for an option on all his compositions for the next five years. Sinclair said he was impressed with the musical score of "High Hat," the musical comedy written by Williams.

Denver Incorporates.

On a petition of two-thirds of the tax payers of Denver, articles of incorporation were granted by the circuit court at Grant City. The main idea in asking for incorporation is to enable the town to grant a franchise to an electric light company to furnish current. The Maryville Electric Light and Power Company has been negotiating for the franchise.

Grant City Seeks Creamery.

The Worth County Times says: "Workers left Grant City Monday with contracts with the idea of making a desperate effort this week to find the sentiment of Worth county farmers toward building a co-operative creamery in Grant City. The results of this week's canvass will likely put into definite form the idea that has been favored in the county the past year. Signatures were asked on contracts that provide for the sale of all cream products to one co-operative concern. Two thousand cows is the goal."

"Babe" Adams for Sheriff.

"Having definitely retired from professional baseball after almost a quarter of a century as a pitching ace, Charles B. ('Babe') Adams has decided to try a whirl at politics," states the Bethany Clipper. "He has announced for the Democratic nomination for sheriff. Politics is a new game to the former Pittsburgh Pirate star. Since this is his first activity some of his friends wanted him to run as a Republican but Adams said, 'If I can't win as a Democrat, I can stand it. I've lost before.' Adams is 46 years old. He went from his farm near Mount Moriah in 1905 into organized baseball and in 1907 won a place on the Pirate team. His pitching career did not end until last year, when he said he was through."

Mumps May Halt Drilling.

Drilling of the well for oil on the Harrison county farm, which has gone to a depth of 880 feet, may be halted from an unexpected source. It is nothing else than mumps. Joe Weidner, one of the drillers, never has had the mumps. He and other drillers have been boarding at the James Belt home next to the well and one of the Belt children came down with the mumps. Weidner has been exposed. If he takes the disease L. M. Brosius is the only driller left for duty.

Superintendent to School.

Alva Allen, county superintendent of schools in Harrison county, will close his office from June 5 to August 8, so that he can attend the summer session of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College here.

Delivers Commencement Address.

Columbia, Mo., June 2.—Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the University of Missouri, delivered the commencement address at Christian College here. The event marked the closing of a week of commencement activities.

Olvany was excused and the committee called B. E. Eldred, head of the Hoover engineers committee.

Olvany was then recalled to say that the Democratic committee paid no rent to the Tammany society for occupying Tammany Hall.

"The committee is in there only by sufferance," said Olvany.

Eldred said his receipts totalled $5,292. His expenses amounted to $3,018.

John J. Curry, state manager of the Curtis for President club here, said he had spent $1,116, and raised $1,175.

Eldred's testimony ended the morning session and the committee adjourned until 2 p. m.

C. R. Miller, head of the civic league of Albany, testifying at the opening of the afternoon session, said he was not supporting any particular candidate for the presidentcy.

"I am, however, opposed to any candidate who is against legislation to correct the morals of the people," he said.

$25,000 to a State Chairman.

Miller testified he had heard from a friend that Governor Smith directly or indirectly had advanced $25,000 to a Democratic state chairman in a "sage brush state."

"The chairman came to New York and went to a $2 hotel," Miller said.

"He went to breakfast with Governor Smith and Smith asked him if he wanted any more," Miller said his friend told him.

"He said he had refused to take any more."

Later the chairman gave an interview to New York newspapers saying his state was for Smith, Miller said.

The man who related the story to him, he said, was Former Governor Silzer of New York.

Miller could not remember the name of the "sage brush" state.

That conversation was related by Sulzer on a railroad train to Washington in April, Miller said.

Miller said he was "pretty sure" that William F. Kenny, New York contractor who gave $70,000 to the Smith campaign, had turned over the $25,000 at Smith's request.

of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

The general "protest" of "farmers' revolt," also involved the presidential candidacies of three middlewestern favorite sons, namely, Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, U. S. Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, and Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas.

Second Covered Wagon Caravan.

The object of the meeting, however general, was to plan the so-called "second caravan of the covered wagon"—the mass movement of farmers upon the Republican national convention at Kansas City.

The proposed demonstration will urge upon national convention delegates two things:

1. That the Republican party select as its presidential nominee a man from the Middle West, one who is in sympathy with the farmer and who "understands" him.

2. That the doctrine of the Republican protective tariff be applied to agriculture, and that the farmer be accorded the same protection which now is given to industry.

Claim 380 Delegates.

Leaders of the movement pointed out that the meeting represented states which claim a total of 380 voting delegates at the national convention, and that the movement, despite derision from some quarters, is serious.

"There is nothing rabid, extremist or revolutionary about the corn belt revolt," said Governor Adam McMullen, of Nebraska.

"It is a movement of conservatively minded voters who want agriculture protected."

M. J. Tobin, of Vinto, Ia., a Lowden adherent, presided over the meeting. Tobin and McMullen, apparently, are the leaders in the proposed "caravan."

"The first caravan developed the agricultural empire; the second caravan is moving to protect it," Governor McMullen said.

Preliminary Meeting.

Mark Woods, Lincoln, Nebr., and Judge F. J. Graham, national committeeman from North Dakota, participated in preliminary meetings here last night.

Woods and McMullen were unanimous in predicting the success of the "revolt."

They said at least 150,000 farmers would march on the national convention to "demand their rights."

Three circus main tops have been engaged at Kansas City, Wood said, and will be erected next week. Extensive parking grounds also have been provided on the Missouri and the Kansas side.

McMullen will speak over the radio during the remainder of the week, continuing his appeal for support of the revolt movement.

"We don't want a mere platform pledge," he said, "that is not enough, we want a man who knows the farmers. Long ago we lost interest in party promises."

the Southern Cross to carry it all the way to the Fijis. Kingsford-Smith said the tanks may hold 1,500 gallons, which was believed enough to put them in Suva barring accidents or misfortune. That amount would be 300 gallons more than the plane carried when it left Oakland.

Barking Sands, where the Southern Cross will be taken as soon as it is ready to resume the Australian journey is the only spot on the Islands where a heavily loaded plane can make a run long enough to lift it from the ground.

The sands gained their name from the rumbling sound which arises when one walks on them. There is danger in using them for airplane runway, as several fliers have learned. Dick Grace, Hollywood flier, damaged his plane on several attempts to rise on a flight from Hawaii to the California mainland last summer.

Like Home to Lyon.

Many friends and admirers of the four flying men sought them out today. Lyon, a former officer in the United States navy, lived in the Islands for a time and has many acquaintances. Although this is his first trip here in 11 years, he has been surrounded by them constantly since he stepped from the cabin of the plane at Wheeler Field yesterday.

Out of respect for their wishes to avoid strenuous social programs while they are here, all entertainments for them will be informal.

They have responded good-naturedly to repeated requests from admirers to relate the story of the Southern Cross' epochal voyage. As was judged from the tone of their radio messages, they enjoyed the whole flight extremely, they said.

Lyon, for one, was never in serious doubt as to the ability of the ship to succeed in the hazardous venture, which has claimed the lives of six men and a girl.

Navigator Unafraid.

Asked if he experienced any fear of plunging into the ocean, the navigator replied:

"Hell no. I was born to be hanged—not drowned."

The Southern Cross required 27 hours and 28 minutes for the flight from California. The most trying part the journey, the four men agreed, was during the early hours of yesterday when they temporarily lost their bearings and were uncertain of the amount of gasoline left in the tanks. Once they had feared their fuel would be depleted before they reached land, but the gasoline gauge was found later to be registering faultily. They arrived at their goal with 130 gallons to spare.

"After we dropped the San Francisco radio beacon, we navigated by periodic compass," Captain Kingsford-Smith said. "All through the trip the plane performed splendidly. The motors fired clear through to the finish."

Compass Goes Bad.

The instruments furnished the only mechanical worries of the voyage. After the gasoline gauge had failed, the compass went bad.

"We did all our navigating by dead reckoning after that," Lyon said.

It was reported that he had told Chang Tsung-Chang, one of the leading northern generals, to resist to the utmost with his army in the Luchow district the advance of the Nationalists forces.

Probably Not Long.

Prior to the report of this decision, Chang Tso-Lin had asked Field Marshal Wang Shin-Chen to arrange for maintenance of peace and order after his withdrawal, and pending the expected entrance of Nationalists troops into the city.

It was not believed at the moment that—unless there was a dramatic and complete change in the military situation—Chang Tso-Lin's new decision to remain at Peking could endure long.

Feng-Tien troops, of the northern army—perhaps its best ones—were reported to have been routed after suffering heavy casualties in desperate fighting with Shansi troops on the western front. The northerners were reported to be retreating on Kaoahatien.

Fifty Years Ago

(Taken from the Nodaway Democrat, May 30, 1878).

Marve Hosmer now occupies the former law office of Edwards and Ramsey in addition to his old room.

If you do not believe that improvements are going on in Nodaway county just take a ride into the country in any direction you please and see for yourself.

Howell Bros., the enterprising lumber firm, have established a branch yard on Main street, north of the Methodist church. It will be in charge of Joseph Mall, with Nelson Churchill as an assistant.

Jim Davis and Festus Redfield left last Tuesday with the thoroughbred race horse Hardcash for Denver, Colo. They will participate in the July races which are to take place in that city. Albert Duey will take the clerkship in the Baltimore clothing house made vacant by Jim.

On Monday, the 27t inst., the children of St. Mary's Catholic school of this city celebrated the name's-day of their teacher, St. Mary Augustine. After a welcome delivered by Miss Mary McDermott the scholars entertained the audience with a number of fine declamations and comic dialogues. Among others who excelled were Mary McDermott, Barbara Romaser, Effie Neighbors and little Anna O'Connor.

Dr. J. W. Dean is building a fine frame dwelling on his six acre tract of land in southeast Maryville. The main part of the building is two stories high and covers a space of 26 by 40 feet on the ground with a one story L attached, size 16 by 21. It will be one of the finest and most costly dwelling in the county. Conrad & Totterdale are superintending the carpenter work. The plastering is being done by Lafe H. Hagins and Charlie Messenger.

The Nodaway county racing association will conduct races at the fair grounds June 6 and 7. The association offers purses aggregating $600 and as our half mile track is one of the very best in the west we may naturally expect a large attendance from abroad.

The following list of prizes were awarded on last Friday by Miss Ella Redmond, in charge of the fifth department of the Maryville public schools: Mary Ware, for attendance and punctuality, framed chromo; Alice Alexander, for attendance and good conduct, autograph album; the greatest number of headmarks in A division, Freddy Davis, framed chromo; for perfect deportment during entire term, Emma Robinson, handsome book.

William Hickman, negro, on last Monday filed his voluntary petition in bankruptcy, listing his liabilities as $2 and assets at 5 cents. The petition was filed with Squire Ford. His liability was a $2 board bill and assets included one blacking brush and accompaniments; two shirts, two pair of pants presented to him by Ed Hull and Wm. Charles and exempt from debt, one pair of shoes, one hat, and the promise of one coat for winter wear, provided the petitioner behaves well.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The committee recently appointed by the Commercial Club to canvass the business men of the city relative to having a rousing, old-fashioned fourth of July celebration here in Maryville completed the work and found an overwhelming sentiment in favor of having the eagle scream right here at home. The committee consisted of Frank Reuillard and Robert Sanders made a close canvass of every one who would likely be interested in such a celebration and of eighty-nine men interviewed, 73 were in favor and 16 were opposed.

Recent developments in Democratic congressional circles indicate that Hon. C. F. Booher will not have such easy running in the matter of walking off with the congressional nomination as was indicated when B. R. Martin of Maryville announced that he would not be a candidate. Albert B. Duncan of St. Joseph, who is not in Democratic politics, has filed for the office. He has served in the legislature from the fourth district in Buchanan county.

Nodaway county has lost 302 children of school age during the past year. This was revealed Tuesday in County Clerk Demott's office when the school enumeration for the county was made public. The total enumeration of school children was 8,490. Last year it was 8,792.

President Cook was re-elected president of the Normal school Saturday. The plan to elect him for two years, however, did not materialize. The first ballot taken by the regents resulted in a vote of six to one in favor of the re-election of President Cook. O. P. Williams of Plattsburg cast a ballot for Hugh Whiteford of St. Joseph. Members of the board voting for President Cook were C. J. Colden, W. F. Rankin, H. J. Hughes, W. D. Rusk, I. R. Williams and Howard A. Glass.

Bishop William A. Quayle of Chicago probably one of the most brilliant pulpit speakers in America, will speak in Maryville June 22, according to information sent by Rev. Grant A. Robbins. Binshop Quayle also will speak at the district conference at Bolckow, June 25.

A new G. A. R. post was mustered in at Burlington Junction Thursday morning by Mustering Officer N. Sisson. Captain Hyslop, George H. Null, John Evans and John G. Grems also took part in the installation. The members of the new post are Austin F. Still, John Fox, John Hum, Abraham Jones, William H. Miller, Hiram Kunce, Alexander S. Bollinger, Jonathan Graves, William Smith, Chester J. Rees, John S. Stafford, Samuel W. Ripley and James B. Lathrop.

Would Return to Old Form of Government

Kirksville, Mo., June 2.—A petition is being circulated among citizens here to change the city government from the commission plan back to election of councilmen. It is claimed that the change would result in lower taxes.

The Campaign Log

June 2.

By United Press.

Charles M. Howell, Kansas City lawyer, has been selected to place the name of Senator James A. Reed in nomination at the Democratic national convention.

Additional political leaders, of both major parties, were called to testify today before the Senate campaign investigating committee in New York. George W. Olvaney, head of Tammany Hall, was one of those subpoenaed but he may not testify until Monday.

William Hirth, president of the corn Belt federation, said that the farmers would make their last stand for equality at the Republican national convention and that failure of a farm relief plan to be included in the platform would mean a breakup of the Republican party.

New York politicians are understood to be considering a plan to have former Governor A. C. Shallenberger of Nebraska seek the Democratic vice-presidential nomination on a ticket with Governor Smith.

Political authorities in Washington discount reports of a "third party" movement although there have been rumors of formation of both third and fourth major political parties recently.

Say Auto Fatalities Will Reach 23,400

Chicago, June 2.—Approximately 23,400 Americans will be killed in automobile accidents during 1928, two professors of the University of Chicago predict on the basis of fatality statistics last year.

To Start Work Soon on St. Louis Stadium

St. Louis, Mo., June 2.—Plans for the building of a football stadium to seat 70,000 persons has been approved by the Athletic Council of Washington University here.

Work will start soon on the first unit to seat 35,000 and cost approximately $450,000. The cost when completed will be about $1,000,000. It will be of the excavated type, similar to the Yale Bowl. The first unit will be ready by September.

Tallest Smoke Stack

Stockholm, June 2.—The tallest smoke stack in Europe is now being construction for the Skelleftear Mining Company at Roennskaer, in northern Sweden. When completed, the stack will rise 476 feet above the ground. The outside top diameter will be 17 feet, and the outside base diameter, 36 feet. The whole structure will weigh some 6,500 tons, and cost $107,200.

The presence of poisonous sulphur fumes necessitates a smoke stack of these dimensions in order to carry the gases safely over the surrounding community.

Duncan to File for Congress on Monday

Today's St. Joseph Gazette says Richard M. Duncan, city counselor of St. Joseph, announced yesterday he would file Monday as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress. Mr. Duncan explained that his delay was due to sentimental reasons more than anything else, as Monday he will observe his fifteenth wedding anniversary.

The Gazette says Duncan appears likely to have the united support of the Fourth district Democrats behind his ambition to go to congress.

To Move His Citrus Orchard to Barnard

Charles H. Bryant, New Superintendent, to Bring Orange, Lemon and Grapefruit Trees From Forest City.

Forest City, Mo., June 2—When Charles H. Bryant, who has been superintendent of the Forest City schools the last two years, moves to Barnard next week, he will take his citrus orchard with him.

He has six orange, lemon and grapefruit trees ranging in age from 2 to 11 years and in height from 2 to 9 feet.

During the school term the trees are kept inside the building and were used to decorate rooms on special occasions. They have decorated the auditorium stage for commencement exercises the last eight years in Altamont, Winston, Westboro and here. In the summer months they are kept out of doors and as the result the leaves more than double in size and the roots force their way through the bottom of the tub which contains them and far into the ground. Each year the trees have been re-potted in new soil and in a larger container.

The trees blossom annually but bear no fruit.

Mr. Bryant is to be superintendent of schools at Barnard, succeeding Ed Adams, who has accepted the superintendency at Blockton, Ia.

Katherine Courtney Called Perfect Girl

Miss Well Known Here Is Adjudged Winner of Contest at Kansas City Central Junior High.

An announcement of interest to Maryville citizens appeared in the Kansas City papers last night, which revealed Katherine Courtney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. The contest was conducted through the school's personal hygiene and physical education departments, and only girls in these departments might compete.

To win this honor, a girl must stand high in scholarship and rate high in physical education work and character. Miss Courtney will hold the "perfect girl" loving cup until the 1929 perfect girl is selected at the school.

STOCKS SOAR UPWARDS

Victor Talking Machine Co. Also Said to Be Concerned in Wall Street Negotiations.

St. Louis, Mo., June 2. — Major General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, denied here today a rumor that a merger of his company with the International Telegraph and Telephone Company was contemplated.

Harbord, here attending the tenth annual reunion of the second division, A. E. F., said:

"The law would not permit such a merger. There are no such negotiations under way. If there were, we could do nothing, as Congress is not in session and it would be necessary for it to change the law to make such a merger possible."

New York, June 2.—Reports of a merger creating the biggest communications system in the world sent stocks of the Radio Corporation of American and the International Telephone and Telegraph Company rocketing upwards to new highs today.

Although word current in Wall Street that the transmission facilities of Radio Corporation would be purchased by the I. T. & T. was not officially confirmed, the feeling that it was true was reflected in the stock exchange. R. C. A. stock jumped $4 to $224 a share, and I. T. and T. was up $9.50 a share to a new high of $197.

Meantime stock of the Victor Talking Machine Company, which Wall Street reported would become associated with R. C. A. after the latter went out of the transmission business, jumped $8 a share to $101.50.

Should the merger deal go through, it would have tremendous ramifications in the communications world.

According to the plan as it was being discussed in Wall Street, the I. T. & T. would take over the R. C. A. merely its commercial communications facilities, leaving the latter free to develop it broadcasting and manufacturing activities, including the rumored hookup with the Victor Talking Machine Company whereby R. C. A. would have access to Victor artists.

The combined wire and radio facilities of such a communications combine would put it in a dominant position. Its system would be approached only by the cable-radio system in formation by British interests.

The deal would be a distinct triumph for Sosthense and Hermand Behn, natives of the West Indies but now naturalized American citizens, who control the I. T. & T. A few years ago they were unknown in the world of big business. Recently they completed a $300,000,000 merger with the Postal Telegraph-Commercial Cables Co.

Editor Causes Storm by Criticising Lindy

Accusation That "Air God Has Swell Head" Brings Amarillo, Tex., Up in Arms.

Amarillo, Tex., June 2.—Townspeople were up in arms here over an article in the Amarillo Globe in which Gene Howe, the editor, asserts that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is suffering from a case of "swell head."

Several hundred school children held a meeting and voiced their protest. They were joined by merchants of the city, who threatened to withdraw their advertising from the paper.

Commenting on the wave of criticism, Howe refused to recant but restated his belief "that Lindbergh has the swell head."

"I'll grant that he has courage but I also insist he is more or less simple minded or he could not have permitted his head to grow to such large proportions."

That he was justified in his criticism of the national hero, Howe said, was indicated by several hundred letters from subscribers who sided with him.

Howe said the other day while Lindbergh was flying to the Pacific Coast, he was invited to visit Amarillo. He issued a public statement that he would not stop here but would continue to Clovis, N. M., for his night stop. The next morning, however, Lindbergh landed in Amarillo unexpected.

"Some of his elders should teach him some manners," declared Howe. "He did not even acknowledge the invitations he received from this city and the next morning he arrived here. Did he quietly refuel and proceed on his way? No!

"Lindbergh made two swings over the city, advertising that the air God was here. He then settled down on the landing field and when Amarillo people began to flock to the field he proceeded to act bored and annoyed, and was almost insolent."

Howe apparently was not worried over the storm of protest that has fallen about his head, for he says he has friends who say he is the first editor who has dared criticise the world hero.

Friends to His Defense.

St. Louis, Mo., June 2.—Friends of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh came to his defense here today against the charge of an Amarillo, Tex., editor, that he was suffering from a case of "Swelled head."

"I read the account of the charge with surprise and with regret, for the estimable editor is simply wrong," Major Albert Bond Lambert, dean of aviation here and a close personal friend of Lindbergh, told the United Press.

"It has been his utter lack of that very element, his consideration and tact, that I am convinced has won him twice as much popular regard as his epochal flight from New York to Paris.

"Colonel Lindbergh has been pressed to the limit in the last six months by well-meaning persons who have robbed him of the quiet existence he feels he now is entitled to.

"He told me recently that his shoulders were so sore from back-slaps of admirers that he unconsciously winced when a well-wisher was within 10 feet of him.

ARCTIC KEEPS ITALIA'S FATE

SECRET KEPT TENACIOUSLY AS SEARCHERS PREPARE.

FOUR NATIONS AIDING

Norway, Russia and Sweden Join With Italy in Planning Rescue Expeditions.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 2.—The snow and ice bound wastes of the Arctic today held tenaciously to the secret of the dirigible Italia's fate, and relief expeditions were planned by at least four nations.

Already two small groups are plunging into the little known district of northern Spitzbergen, bent on determining whether the dirigible and its crew of sixteen men suddenly plunged to the ice coated earth one week ago yesterday. That was the last heard of the blunt-nosed craft that so successfully glided over the north pole and made other exploration tours through the arctic area.

Ten Days to Explore.

The two groups were composed of chasseurs landed by the Citta Di Milano. Headed by guides who had roamed through the frozen country, the two teams plowed through the northern part of this island—one taking a coast route and the other striking inland towards Northeastland, the bleak island near Spitzbergen.

However, it will take at least 10 days for the two small groups to complete their expeditions of mercy.

Meanwhile, the nations of north and south Europe combined to rescue the daring explorer, General Umberto Nobile and his aides.

Aid From Four Nations.

Norway gave its best flying officers and ships. Russia gave airplanes and two ice breakers. Sweden offered aid. Italy has chartered one whaler to attempt to save her countrymen, and a swift and powerful seaplane soon will be here to aid in the rescue expedition. The seaplane was expected to arrive sometime next week and will work with the Citta Di Milano, supply ship, which already has made one venturesome journey through the ice floes to the north of Kings Bay. The Citta Di Milano may go out again next week.

Leaders in the world of aviation and scientific exploration have joined in sending relief to Nobile, who may be attempting to beat back through unchartered lands to the base here.

NON-FICTION INTO ITS OWN

CHANGE IN PUBLIC FAVOR NOTED AT LIBRARY.

SIX POPULAR WORKS

Lindbergh, Lawrence, Halliburton, Mayo, Barton and Trader Horn Displace Novelists.

The new books that have come to the Maryville Public Library since the first of the year, some of which are still being reviewed in the newspapers, are proving popular with Maryville patrons.

According to the librarian, Miss Grace Langan, fiction is not in such great demand at this particular season as non-fiction. There was never a time when more calls were being made for non-fiction, Miss Langan said.

The six most popular books on the Library shelves today, out almost continuously, includes "We," by Charles H. Lindbergh; "The Royal Road to Romance" and "Glorious Adventure," by Richard Halliburton; "Revolt in the Desert," by T. E. Lawrence; "Mother India," by Katherine Mayo; "What Can a Man Believe," by Bruce Barton; and the latest book, "Trader Horn."

Lindbergh's book on his flight to Paris, together with his opinions on the future of aviation, never gets back to the shelf. The book goes out to another borrower just as soon as it gets back to the librarian's desk.

In fiction, the writers who appear the best-liked here among women readers are Wilda Cather, Carolyn Wells, Anna Katherine Green, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Margaret Pedler, and Martha Ostenso.

"Dusty Answer," by Rosamond Lehmann, "Jalna," by De La Roache, and "Lights Up," by Grace Richmond, were pointed out as books that have been widely read and generally liked.

The Russian novelist, Anzia Yezierska, is attracting several readers with her latest novel, "The Arrogant Beggar." Each time it was borrowed and returned the book brought a word of praise from the reader.

The best of the older books are maintaining their place.

The Burroughs fan can find several of this novelist's books. The creator of Tarzan has written "The Outlaw of Torn," and "At the Earth's Core," and they are proving his most popular writings since the Tarzan series.

Zane Grey still holds his readers at the Maryville Library and a week doesn't pass without calls for some western novel by him. "Forlorn River," "Day of the Beast," and "Under the Tonto Rim," are among his well read novels.

The Library is able to furnish the public with many of the most recently discussed writings by new authors and old, and its services is being taking advantage of daily.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard ("Hickory") Leech and two children, Bobby and Nancy Ann, of Perry, Mo., visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cooper Thursday. To Attend Kansas Commencement.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. James and granddaughter, Gwendolyn Meek, left by motor today for Lawrence, Kan., where they will attend the graduating exercises of the University of Kansas, which begin tomorrow. Miss Verlea James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James, will receive her A. B. degree from the University this year.

Maurice Strong and Porterfield Cockayne arrived in Maryville last night to spend a week with their parents before returning to Drake University at Des Moines, Ia., to resume their studies.

Miss Wilma Koger, of near Clearmont, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Birkenholz at Pickering.

What Jerry Says

Why climb into an airplane
And hunt for arctic poles?
For what have we accomplished
If we chance to reach our goals?

I can't see where the fun is
In risking life and limb,
When the chances of vain glory
Seem to be so very slim.

If you have a great desire
To get a real thrill,
Just go out to some farmer's house,
Where you can eat your fill.

Where they dish strawberry short cake
With good old country cream,—
That should give thrills a plenty
For any, it would seem.

Then add to that, good home made bread,
And ham and gravy, too,
And butter, jam and jelly
Should be enough for you.

But if you can't be satisfied
With that good bill of fare,
Go sailing to the north pole,
And see if I will care.

Saturday

Missouri: "Don't Tell The Wife," starring Irene Rich.

Electric: "Bad Man's Bluff," starring Buffalo Bill, jr.

Both theaters next week are offering well-known movie stars in well-known productions.

"Beau Sabreur" Sunday and Monday's attraction at the Missouri, is a sequel to "Beau Geste," both from the pen of Percival C. Wren.

Jackie Coogan, in "Buttons," is a "red-letter" attraction at the Electric next week. Jackie's new picture is a romance of the sea, laid aboard an Atlantic liner where he takes the role of a page boy to the captain.

A strange old haunted castle in England, over which hang sinister legends of long ago and astounding vampire superstitions, still believed by many, concerning the "un-dead" which haunt grave yards and wander, between life and death, as malevolent avengers—these form the background of Lon Chaney's characterization in "London After Midnight," playing the Missouri Thursday and Friday.

Chaney plays a role different from any in his career, for instead of his usual sinister character he appears as a Scotland Yard detective, who, with a scientific trend, utilizes hypnotism as a weapon against ghosts and apparitions in the haunted manor.

GIRL ALONE

By ANNE AUSTIN, AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SALLY FORD, 16, ward of the state orphanage, is "farmed out" to CLEM CARSON. She meets DAVID NASH athlete and student, working on the Carson farm for the summer. When Carson makes remarks about their friendship, David hits him. They run away and join a carnival. David as cook's helper and Sally as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

In Capital City, location of the orphanage, Sally is recognized when the orphans come trooping into the show tent, chaperoned by a beautiful "Lady Bountiful." The barker diverts attention from her and she is saved. Sally learns from ARTHUR VAN HORNE, handsome easterner, that this "Lady Bountiful" is ENID BARR, wife of a wealthy New Yorker.

The carnival moves on to an adjoining state and Sally and David go about the streets without fear of detection. One day Sally is petrified to see MRS. STONE, matron of the orphanage, coming toward her. She gives the distress signal to GUS, the barker, who helps Sally get away, not, however, until Mrs. Stone makes sure Princess Lalla is Sally Ford. Sally and David run away from the carnival and tramp all night. David tells Sally they will be married in the morning. With a strange fear that something will happen to prevent their marrying, Sally and David hurry on.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 38

"Canfield is a county seat," David shouted exultantly before his long strides had brought him back to Sally. "The driver of the milk truck guessed why I wanted to know," he added in a lower voice, as he came abreast of her and took her hands to swing them triumphantly. "He says we crossed the state line about 10 miles back and that the marriage laws are very easy on elopers here. In some states you have to establish a legal residence before you can be married, but there'll be no trouble like that here. Elopers from two or three bordering states come here to get married, he saws. We're in luck sweetheart."

"You didn't tell him our names?" Sally asked anxiously. "Mrs. Stone will have sent out a warning—"

"I'm not quite such an idiot," David laughed, "even if I am crazy in love. Now the next problem is breakfast. I suppose a farmhouse will be the best bet. It wouldn't be safe for us to hang around Canfield for three or four hours, waiting for the marriage license bureau to open. We're going to be married, darling, before the law has a chance to lay its hand on us."

They trudged along the state highway, miraculously revived by hope that all their troubles would soon be over, their eyes searching eagerly for a farmhouse. And just over the rise of a low hill they found it—a tenant farmer's unpainted shack, from whose chimney rose a straight column of blue smoke.

They found the family at breakfast—the wife a slim, pretty, discontented-looking girl only a few years older than Sally; the husband, thick, short, dark and dour, at least a dozen years older than his wife; and a tow-headed baby boy of three.

The kitchen was an unpainted and unpapered lean-to of rough, weather-darkened pine. But Sally and David had eyes only for the tall stack of buckwheat cakes, the platter of roughly cut, badly fried "side meat," the huge graniteware coffee pot set on a chipped plate in the center of the table.

"Breakfast?" the dour tenant-farmer grunted, in answer to David's question. "Reckon so, if you can eat what we got. It'll cost you 50 cents a piece. I don't work from sun-up to sun-down to feed tramps."

"Oh, Jim!" the wife protested, flushing. "Cakes and coffee ain't worth 50 cents. I might run down to the big house and get some eggs and cream —" she added uncertainly, her distressed brown eyes flickering from Sally and David in the doorway to her scowling husband.

"We'll be delighted with the buckwheat cakes and bacon and coffee, and not think a dollar too much for our breakfast," David cut in, smiling placatingly upon the farmer. "We're farmers ourselves, and we're used to farm ways. How are crops around here, sir?"

"My name's Buckner," the dour farmer answered grudgingly. "I'll bring in a couple of chairs. Millie, you'd better fill up this here syrup pitcher and you might open a jar of them damson preserves."

"And I'll beat up some more hot cake batter," Millie Buckner fluttered happily. "It won't take me a minute."

Sally and David washed their hands and faces at the pump outside the kitchen door, drying them on a fresh roller towel that Jim Buckner brought them.

"Run away to get married, have you?" the farmer asked in an almost pleasant voice, as he led the way to the newly set table.

"Yes," David answered simply. "We walked all night and we're rather tired, but we though there was no use in going to Canfield until pretty near 9 o'clock."

"I guess Millie can fix up a bed so the little lady can snatch a nap 'tween now and then," Buckner offered. "Pitch in, folks! It ain't much, but you're welcome. Farmer, eh?" and his narrow eyes measured David's splendid young body thoughfully. "Aim to locate around here? Old man Webster, the man I rent this patch of ground from, is needing hands bad. He's got a shack over the hill that he'd likely fix up for you if you ain't got anything better in mind. Not quite as nice as this house—we got three rooms, counting this lean-to, and the shack I'm referrin' to is only one room and a lean-to, but the little lady could fix it up real pretty if she's got a knack that way, like Millie here has."

Sally almost choked on her mouthful of buckwheat cake. Were all her dreams of a home to come to this—or worse than this? One room and a lean-to? She felt suddenly ill and was swaying in her chair, when David's firm, big hand closed over hers that lay laxly on the table.

"Thanks, Mr. Buckner," she heard David's voice faintly as from a great distance. "That's mightly nice of you, but Sally and I have other plans."

Other plans? Sally smiled at him tremulously, adoringly, knowing full well that he had no plans at all beyond the all-important marriage ceremony. But after breakfast she lay down on the bed that Millie Buckner hasily "straightened" and drifted off to sleep, as happy as if her future were blue-printed and insured against poverty. For no matter what might be in store for her, there would always be David—

They left the tenant farmer's shack at half past eight o'clock, Millie and Jim Buckner and the baby waving them goodby. Buckner, ashamed of his ungraciousness, had refused to take the dollar, but David had wrapped the baby's small, sticky fingers about the folded bill.

"Shall we go up the hill and see 'Old Man' Webster?" David asked gravely when they were in the lane leading to the highway.

"Let's," agreed Sally valiantly.

"You'd really be willing to live—like that?" David marveled, his head jerked toward the dreary little shack they were leaving behind them.

"If—if you were with me it wouldn't matter," Sally answered seriously.

"You'll never have to!" David exulted, sweeping her to his breast and kissing her regardless of the fact that the Buckners were still watching them. "I promise you it will never be as bad as that, honey. But maybe Jim Buckner promised Millie the same thing," he added in a troubled, uncertain voice.

"I'll never be sorry," Sally promised huskily.

They reached Canfield a few minutes after nine and had no difficulty in finding the county court house, for its grounds formed the "square" which was the hub of the small town. An old man pottering about the tobacco-stained halls with a mop and pail directed them to the marriage license bureau, without giving them a glance or waiting for David to frame his embarrassed question.

The clerk, a pale, very thin young man, whose weak eyes were enlarged by thick-lensed glasses, thrust a printed form through the wicket of his cage, and went on with his work upon a big ledger, having apparently not the slightest interest in foolish young couples who wanted to commit matrimony.

"Answer all the questions," the clerk mumbled, without looking up. "Table in the corner over there. Pen and ink."

Sally and David were laughing helplessly by the time they had taken seats at the pine table in the corner. "Proving you're never as important as you think you are," David chuckled. "Let's see. 'Place of residence?' I suppose we'll have to put Capital City. But that chap certainly doesn't give a continental who we are or where we're from. We're all in the day's work with him, thank heaven. Don't forget to put your age at 18, darling."

When they presented their filled and signed application for a marriage license, the clerk accepted it with supreme indifference, glancing at it and drew a stack of marriage license blanks toward him. As he began to write the names, however, he frowned thoughtfully, then peered through the bars of his cage at the blushing, frightened couple.

"Your names sound awfully familiar to me," he puzzled. "Where you from? Capital City? Say, you're the kids that got into a row with a farmer and busted his leg and beat it, ain't you?"

Sally pressed close to David, her hands locking tightly over his arm, but David, as if he did not understand her signal, answered the clerk in a steady voice: "Yes, we are."

"I read all about you in the papers," the clerk went on in a strangely friendly voice. "I reckon your story made a deep impression on me because I was raised in an orphans' home myself and ran away when I was 14. I hoped at the time that you kids would make a clean get-away. I see the young lady's had a couple of birthday's in the last month," he grinned and winked. "Eighteen now, eh?"

"Yes," Sally quavered and then laughed, the lid of her right eye fluttering slowly down until the two fringes of black lashes met and entangled.

The clerk's pen scratched busily. "All right, youngsters. Here you are. Justice of the peace wedding?"

"We'd rather be married by a minister," David answered as he laid a $20 bill under the wicket and reached for the marriage license.

"That's easy," the clerk assured him heartily. "Like every county seat, Canfield's got her 'marrying parson.' Name of Greer. He's building a new church out of the fees that the eloping couples pay him. Lives on Chestnut street. White church and parsonage. Five blocks up Main street and turn to your right, then walk a block and a half. You can't miss it. And good luck, kids. You'll need lots of it."

David thrust a hand beneath the wicket and the two young men shook hands. David flushed and embarrassed but smiling, the clerk grinning good-naturedly.

"Hey, don't forget your change," their new friend called as David and Sally were turning away. "Marriage licenses in this state cost only $1.50. If you've got any spare change, give it to Parson Greer."

"Oh, he was sweet!" Sally cried, between laughter and tears, as they walked out of the courthouse. "I thought I would faint when he asked us that awful question. But everything's all right now."

"We're as good as married," David assured her triumphantly, slapping his breast pocket and cocking his head to listen to the cracking of the marriage license. "Five blocks up Main street. Up must mean north—"

Within five minutes they were awaiting an answer to their ring at the door of the little white parsonage half hidden behind the rather shabby white frame building of the church.

A stout, rosy-cheeked, whitehaired old lady opened the door and beamed upon them. "You're looking for the 'marrying parson,' aren't you?" she chuckled. "Well, now, it's a shame, children, but you'll have to wait quite a spell for him. He's conducting a funeral at the home of one of our parishioners, and won't be back until about half past 11. I'm Mrs. Greer. Won't you come in and wait?"

Sally and David consulted each other with troubled, disappointed eyes. Sally wanted to cry out to David that she was afraid to wait two hours, afraid to wait even half an hour, but with Mrs. Greer beaming expectantly upon them she did not dare.

"Thank you, Mrs. Greer," David answered, his hand tightening warningly upon Sally's. "We'll wait."

As they followed Mrs. Greer into the stuffy, over-furnished little parlor, he managed to whisper reassuringly in Sally's ear: "Just two hours, darling. Nothing can happen. No one but the marriage license clerk knows we are here and he's our friend."

But Sally was shaking with fright—

(To Be Continued)

"The Jolly, Friendly Mrs. Jim Watson"

Editor's note: This is the last of a series on prospective "First Ladies" by Allene Sumner, writer for the Democrat-Forum and Tribune and NEA Service. Today's article deals with Mrs. James Watson, wife of the senator from Indiana, who is a Republican presidential aspirant.

By ALLENE SUMNER

Staff Writer for Democrat-Forum and Tribune and NEA Service.

Rushville, Ind., June 1.—If "The Jim Watsons" move into the White House on March 4, 1929, the politicians might just as well know first and foremost that the president'll have little time to bother wtih the likes of them on April Fool's Day.

Mrs. James Watson.

April Fool's Day is a red-letter day in "the Jim Watson family," just as it's apt to be in any household full of impish kids.

To be sure, all the Watsons, big and old know all the jokes. But somebody's bound to get caught.

The Watson's like their pancake joke. They have pancakes and sirup for breakfast every morning, so there's nothing in the mound of brownly crisped cakes in themselves to label the day and make one suspicious.

But someone's bound to get a cotton cake that morning. That April Fool cake has gone the rounds from Dad and Mother down to Joseph Edwin, aged one.

The Watsons and their April Fool joke give a pretty good idea of the sort of family they are; a "close family," a family which prefers its own society to all the other people in the world; a family which thinks home the best place anywhere.

Naturally, someone is responsible for this family solidarity. In the case of "Jim Watsons," they say honors are about equally shared in the home job by Mr. and Mrs. Watson.

Mention Mrs. Watson down in Washington and they'll say:

"Yes, the handsome Mrs. Watson."

Mention Mrs. Jim Watson here in Rushville, and they'll say:

"Yes, that jolly, friendly Mrs. Watson."

Mention her around the home and they'll call her "Mom."

Whenever the senator makes a speech, those who have heard him before are sure of one passage. They say his secretary takes it down even before the senator says it. It goes like this—

"The home is the supreme thing to every man. I am proud to say that for 34 years I have enjoyed as happy and, if you will pardon me, as beautiful a home life as falls to the lot of any man."

What's more, his secretary will tell you, he means it. He says it, not because it's good political stuff, but because he just has to say it.

Flora Miller and Jim Watson went to school together back in Winchester, Ind. The day after their marriage they moved to Rushville, which has been home ever since.

The Watson courting days in Winchester was a mixture of dirt roads, horse and buggy rides, box socials, church suppers, and the annual road company of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Opera House.

Even to this day, they say, the Watsons like an old-fashioned buggy or sleigh ride or hayrack ride in fragrant hay under a harvest moon.

But in Washington no senator's wife is more poised in sophisticated social circles than "the handsome Mrs. Watson."

"The Jim Watsons" are always popular in a bridge game, though the senator likes his solitaire better. They say his idea of a 100 per cent evening is to settle down before the fireplace at his solitaire while "the Mrs." sits by reading or sewing, throwing out an occasional comment about "the children."

"The children" the James E., Jr., who is 31, married, lives in Chicago, and has two sons of his own; Edwin G., aged 32; Katherine, 20; Joseph C., 18, and "Hoosier," the family bull dog.

Edwin G. says he's never going to marry. "There's no girl like mother," which may help describe Mrs. James E. Watson, another possible "First Lady."

Earl McCleave spent Thursday afternoon with Francis and Lester Hyder.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Beaver and son, Fred William, visited at Loy Blanchard's Thursday afternoon.

Commission to Hear Gigantic Dam Plans

Project Near Branson, Mo., Would Be One of Largest in United States.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 2.—Hearing will be held here June 11 before the Public Service Commission on application of the Empire District Electric Company to build a gigantic hydro-electric dam on White River at Table Rock, Taney County, to cost $16,700,000.

The proposed dam would be constructed six and a half miles above Branson and would be 1,924 feet long and 197 feet high and would form a lake covering 29,000 acres at maximum height. It would rank as one of the largest dams in America.

The dam would operate a power plant having a capacity of 150,000 kilowatt hour production from four vertical shaft Francis type turbines, each with 55,000 horsepower maximum. It would furnish light and power to virtually all southeast Missouri and part of Oklahoma and Arkansas.

The proposal calls for a dam 65 miles long on White River side of the lake, 30 miles on the James River, 23.5 miles on Long Creek and 15.5 miles on Kings River.

The company now owns and operates the present dam on White River at Forsyth, Taney county. The application on file with the Public Service Commission since May 14, states that the federal government has granted a preliminary certificate for construction of the dam. A certificate of convenience from the Public Service Commission would mean final authority for the construction.

Because the lake would cover several miles of improved state road the State Highway Department will be represented at the hearing. The power company proposes to provide a roadway and bridge over the main portion of the dam, and to rebuild all roads placed under water.

Child Mortality Rate in Missouri Lowered

Deaths Drop From 70 per 1,000 Live Births to 59.7 in Three Years.—Saved 600 in 1927.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 2.—The infant mortality rate in Missouri showed a remarkable decrease in 1921 due to the organized efforts of health workers, according to Dr. I. B. Krause, director of the division of child hygiene for the state board of health.

In the three years preceding 1927 the death rate among infants under 12 months of age was about 70 per 1,000 live births, Dr. Krause said. In 1927 the rate dropepd to 59.7 for each 1,000 live births, according to records of the state board of health, vital statistics division, Dr. Krause said.

"This decrease in the death rate of infants, which resulted in saving the lives of more than 600 babies in Missouri last year, has been due to the interest taken by various organiaztions in the conservation of child health," Dr. Krause said.

Stocks Are Buoyant at Today's Session

New York, June 2.—Stocks were buoyant in the short session today, the first Saturday market in five weeks. Bullish sentiment spread to all groups following the statement last night by William C. Durant that easy money was in store and that a bigger bull market than ever before was due. Week-end profit taking failed to dampen ardor.

Radio corporation soared to a new high record, followed by international telephone and telegraph and a long list of others.

United States steel eased off more than a point and a few other issues lost fractionally.

Helen Wills Wins From Dutch Champ

Roland Garros Stadium, Paris, June 2.—Miss Helen Wills, of California, today defeated Miss Rollin Courquerque, champion of Holland in the quarter of finals of the international hard court championship, winning the first set 6-2 and the second set 6-0.

Miss Wills' semi-final opponent will be Miss C. H. Hardie, Great Britain, who today beat Miss Daphne Ackhurst, Great Britain, 10-8, 6-1.

Abe, the singles and doubles champion of Japan, was badly outclassed by the veteran Tilden in the opening singles round yesterday. The American captain defeated him in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3, 6-0.

John Hennessey met with more trouble than Tilden in his match, but nevertheless defeated Yoshiro Ohta in straight sets, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3. The Indianapolis Irishman was within a point of losing his first set, but he rallied and thereafter was never in danger. Ohta, however, presented a well-rounded game.

A victory for Tilden and Lott today would give the Americans three out of the five scheduled games, making the final singles round tomorrow only a formality.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, June 2.—Lack of needed rain in the northwest sent wheat futures sharply higher on the board of trade today, although evening up for the week-end shaded prices slightly late in the day. Corn and oats followed the upturn.

At the close wheat was up 1½ to 1⅝ cents; corn was up 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents; and oats advanced 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents. Provisions were lower.

Evening up for the week-end caused a slight break in wheat late in the day after an early upturn. Weather throughout the northwest belt was reported as too cool for good growing of crops. The cash market was 1 cent higher with receipts of 7 cars.

Continued dryness is reported over the corn belt and the forecast for next week is for cooler weather with little rain. The cash market was ½c to 1c higher with 129 cars received.

Rain is needed for progress of the oats crop. The cash market was erratic, rising 1 to 4 cents. Receipts were 30 cars.

G. O. P. SETS UP MACHINE

PRE-CONVENTION ARRANGEMENTS READY BY TUESDAY.

CONTESTS TO BE HEARD

Most of Disputed Seats Are Held by Hoover Delegates—Many Problems Unsolved.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—The maze of details incident to the staging of a national Republican convention today received the personal attention of William M. Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the national committee, who, with his staff of aides and secretaries, arrived yesterday at the scene of the June 12 convention.

Many problems remain yet to be solved, and Chairman Butler lost no time in getting started. By Tuesday of next week the convention machinery will be in place and ready to set in motion. The distribution of tickets, arrangements at Convention Hall, seating of delegates and making up the temporary roll of delegates constitute only a few of the matters that Butler must decide.

Contest Hearings Monday.

His work will not be over until he formally calls the convention to order and hands the gavel to Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, temporary chairman and keynoter.

The hearings of contests for seats in the convention will begin at 10 o'clock Monday morning. J. Francis Burke, Pittsburgh, attorney for the national committee, said the docket for the hearings and the procedure that will be followed would be announced today.

The actual contested seats were reported as follows:

Nine from Florida, four at large and five from congressional districts; three from Georgia, one each from the first, fifth and seventh congressional districts; two from Kentucky, both in the first congressional district; twelve from Louisiana, four of whom are at large and eight from districts; two from Porto Rica; three from Tennessee in the third and tenth districts; and twenty-six—the entire state delegation—from Texas.

Involve Hoover Delegates.

A large percentage of the contests have to do with instructions for Hoover. In most cases Hoover delegations are being challenged by uninstructed groups.

Members of Butler's staff were reticent about discussing presidential candidates. Only one, Roy O. West of Chicago, secretary of the committee, hazarded a statement on the subject. Speaking as a delegate and not as a member of the committee, West said Frank O. Lowden will remain before the convention as a presidential candidate until the last ballot is taken.

He expressed a belief that Lowden would never withdraw as long as the nomination was in doubt.

Miss Mills of Grant City to Edit "Tower"

Officers for College Annual Are Elected.—Fourth Worth County Student to Be Editor.

Miss Kathryn Mills of Grant City was elected editor-in-chief of the 1929 edition of the "Tower" State Teachers College year book, by the sophomore class at a meeting this week. Gordon Trotter of Ridgeway was elected business manager.

The election seats a fourth Worth County student in the editor's chair. One of the others, Miss Elizabeth Mills, was a sister of the newly elected editor. The two girls are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. M. Mills of Grant City. Both Byron Beavers, another editor-in-chief, and Homer Richmond were Wofth county students.

Student popularity and scholarship are strong factors in the selection of "Tower" officers and these positions are two of the highest of student offices at the College here.

TO PAY WAY OF DELEGATE

FLORIDA MAN TELLS OF DEMANDS FOR MONEY.

WALL STREET GIVES

$35,000 Raised for Hoover, But Sentiment Generally Against, Says Witness.

New York, June 2.—John F. Harris, Florida Hoover delegate, told the Senate campaign investigating committee today that he had been solicited for more money because the Florida delegates were unable to pay their way to the Kansas City convention.

Harris said he had agreed to pay the expenses of a Mrs. Overman of Daytona. He said he had given $6,500 to promote an uninstructed delegation, but that he had been instructed by the Florida convention for Hoover.

Harris said he had received several letters from Florida suggesting contests over his seat at the convention might be securely handled if he employed the proper attorney or advertised in a Florida newspaper with 20,000 circulation.

Mayor Warburton, of Palm Beach, Fla., had told him on the phone about the matter, Harris added. Harris said he figured he already had given enough for one contributor.

Wall Street Banker Testifies.

Mrs. Overman said she did not feel she could afford to pay her expenses and that, therefore, he agreed to finance her trip, Harris said.

That testimony came after Louis F. Strauss, of Kuhn, Loeb and Company, had testified about raising around $35,000 in Wall Street for Secretary Hoover. The general sentiment in Wall Street was against Hoover, he informed the committee.

Strauss said he had collected $15,000 from Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears Roebuck and Co., Chicago; $5,000 from Murray Guggenheim and $6,500 from William Ziegler. The witness said all his contributions were reported by Hoover headquarters in Washington.

Hoover's expenses now total $348,342

Collected Since Hearing.

Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, called Strauss' attention to the fact that J. R. Good, Washington manager for Hoover, had only reported $3,500 from Rosenwald.

Strauss said he probably had collected money from Rosenwald since Good appeared before the committee.

Army Fliers Stay Aloft Nearly 59 Hours to Break Record of Stinson and Haldeman.

It was announced officially that the fliers had landed at 3:52 p. m. This made their flying time 58 hours, 37 minutes. Therefore the former Stinson-Haldeman American record was broken by five hours, one minute.

Stinson to Try Again.

Detroit, Mich., June 2.—After sending hearty congratulation today to the two Italian fliers who broke the world's endurance flight record which he and Captain George A. Haldeman established last March, Eddie Stinson said today that he would try to bring the record back to America.

"It probably will be winter before we will have time to try it," Stinson said, "and I believe the ice on Lake St. Clair will be the ideal spot for a try."

He said Haldeman probably would be with him on the next try.

Charges Against President Wayman to be Investigated by Committee of Four Graduates.

Charges against Dr. H. C. Wayman president of the institution, will come within the scope of the investigation which the letter said was for the purpose of "retrieving the college's losses."

Mailing the letters followed receipt of a notice from the American Association of Colleges which called attention to the decline in rating of William Jewell from fully accredited to only 33.3 per cent.

Meteoric Rock Still in Hands of Scientist

Mrs. C. T. Wiley, of Maryville, who found a large meteoric rock, on the Wiley farm near here, believed to contain valuable minerals, is still waiting word from a scientist concerning its exact value.

The worth of the rock was suggested by a friend in Washington to whom Mrs. Wiley sent several small pieces.

If the rock proves as valuable as other ones found throughout the country, by collectors of rocks, Mrs. Wiley would realize a nice profit.

The next hop will be to the Fiji Islands and will be much longer than that to Hawaii, which took nearly all the fuel which the Southern Cross carried. Kingsford Smith and Ulm are Australians, while Lyons and the fourth member of the party, James Warner, are Americans.
